Jarrah Mosco-Klipin

URBAN PLANNER

---

Jarrah is a highly motivated urban planner who joined Echelon Planning in August 2024. With a diverse background spanning development, sustainability, and circular economy, he offers a well-rounded perspective on urban planning. His expertise includes project management, sustainability, innovation, and stakeholder engagement, which equips him to consider environmentally responsible solutions that foster resilient and vibrant urban communities.

In his previous role as an Assistant Project Manager at Stockland, Jarrah co-led the implementation of circular economy focusing on key areas such as decarbonisation, waste management, water conservation, energy efficiency, and material sustainability. He led the development of company policy identifying circular economy opportunities across development sectors and projects. Jarrah also worked in development across Cloverton and Highlands, considering Land Lease opportunities and project delivery.

Jarrah's background demonstrates a strong track record in project management, stakeholder engagement, innovation, and sustainability. He is enthusiastic about leveraging these skills to collaborate with clients and achieve sustainable development outcomes.
